A YOUNG woman who died as a result of injuries she suffered in a collision with a car near her home was pregnant, her family has revealed.

The double tragedy happened when Georgina Bailey, 21, was in collision with a Volkswagen car in Isleham Road, Fordham just before midnight last Monday.

Double tragedy: Georgina Bailey.

A medical team from Magpas Heli-medix was flown to the scene in the Cambridgeshire police helicopter and battled to save her at the roadside before she was taken to Adden-brooke's Hospital, where she died the next morning.

Georgina, who had two sisters and two brothers, was 14 weeks pregnant. Her family said she had split from the baby's father.

Her sister Becky Bailey, 23, said: "I've not only lost a sister but a little niece or nephew too."

Man jailed for bottle attack in nightclub

BOTTLE attacker Johnathan Morris has been jailed for 20 months.

The attack, in De Niro's nightclub in Newmarket, left his victim needing eight stitches to a cut to his neck.

A member of the club's security staff was also cut on the arm when he intervened, Ipswich Crown Court heard.

Morris, 29, of Frampton Close, Newmarket, appeared in court for sentencing after previously admitting two wounding charges.

Samantha Leigh, prosecuting, said the incident happened in the club on July 15 last year.

The victim, who was having a drink with Morris before the attack, described how Morris suddenly grabbed his shirt, ripping off the buttons.

He then felt something pressing against his neck, which turned out to be a broken bottle.

The court heard that Morris was "incredibly drunk" and had taken cocaine before the attack.

He told police afterwards that he was "mortified" by what he had done.

Joanne Eley, in mitigation, said Morris was a family man and had a job. But he had "anger management issues."

Recorder Rhona Campbell, passing sentence, said it was fortunate that the neck injuries had not been life-threatening.

Making their point: protestors gather outside Forest Heath District Council's offices prior to last Wednesday's meeting, in an attempt to save land used for horse training in Newmarket.

Race bosses welcome stand on housing plan

LEADERS of Newmarket's horse racing industry have welcomed a decision by councillors to maintain opposition to plans to build 1,200 houses.

Top racehorse trainers Sir Michael Stoute and Henry Cecil were among opponents of the scheme who packed the public gallery at Forest Heath District Council last Wednesday, when Lord Derby's proposal to develop 160 acres of his land in the town was discussed again.

Opponents of the plans to develop Hatchfield Farm, between Fordham Road and the A14 at Newmarket, accused council officials of trying to whittle down the reasons for refusing planning permission.

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

The racing industry has argued that the scheme would harm the town's status as the historic home of horse racing.

Lord Derby has appealed against the council's refusal of permission and the appeal is due to be considered by a planning inspector later this year.

But councillors were being asked to authorise the head of planning, Nicola Baker, to have talks with Lord Derby's team in an attempt to resolve the reasons for refusing permission and agree a "statement of common ground" in advance of the appeal hearing.

She suggested that two of the reasons could be eliminated.

But councillors insisted that all five should remain and that they should be consulted before an agreement is reached on "common ground" with Lord Derby's planning experts.

Council officials argued that the talks could save an award of costs against the council if Lord Derby wins the appeal.

Jimmy George, a director of racehorse auctioneers Tattersalls, which has employed its own planning consultants to oppose the scheme on behalf of the racing industry, said: "We are very pleased that the planning committee so strongly upheld its original unanimous rejection of the Hatchfield Farm development."

"But at the same time we remain deeply disturbed by the conduct of the officers of Forest Heath District Council."

Lord's brother finds cannabis plants

DRUGS were found growing in a property owned by Lord Derby.

Nearly 90 cannabis plants were recovered from a house off Snailwell Road, Newmarket, on Hatchfield Farm, part of Lord Derby's Stanley Stud.

The police were called after Peter Stanley, Lord Derby's brother, who runs New England Stud in Newmarket, visited the property after what appeared to have been a burglary.

The building is understood to have been let to tenants.

Police said they seized growing equipment as well as plants but no-one was arrested.

The discovery is the third cannabis factory to be uncovered in the town since November. A house in Rous Road was found to have been converted for cannabis growing when the owner and police called.

Three men ran off and although a man was later arrested, he was subsequently released without charge.

A second drug farm was found in a house in Cheveley Road, Newmarket, on December 21.

A 17-year-old Vietnamese youth was arrested at the house and was subsequently given an 18-month detention and training order at Crown court.

He is likely to be deported after completing his sentence.

Police investigations into the discovery of the cannabis at Hatchfield Farm are continuing and anyone with information about the incident is asked to call Suffolk police on (01473) 613500.

Daffodil drive begins to help raise cancer cash

FUNDRAISING for a cancer support charity was launched by a giant daffodil.

The flower is the symbol of Marie Curie Cancer Care, which has launched its annual appeal to support its 28 nurses in Suffolk at Newmarket's Rowley Mile racecourse.

In Suffolk, more than £40,000 is needed to help maintain the service provided by the nurses. But nationally the charity is hoping to raise £5 million.

Daffodil pin badges are being sold at a number of shops and other outlets (including the Weekly News office in Newmarket) to support the appeal. Volunteer fundraisers will also be out collecting this month and during March.

Liz Foster, a Marie Curie Nurse, said: "Every donation for a daffodil will help us to provide more free nursing care hours, allowing people to die in the comfort of their own home surrounded by family and friends."

Money raised will provide more free nursing care for people with terminal cancer and other illnesses in their own home. For further information please visit www.mariecurie.org.uk/daffodil Dancers can also sign up for the Daffodil Dance. More details are available by calling 0845 601 3107.

Soil and toil for tree planters

HUNDREDS of native trees were planted by volunteers to form a new hedge.

The Go Wild In Newmarket group organised a tree and hedge planting session last weekend.

The event was supported by the Green Light Trust and the Tree Council, which supplied 1,500 trees sponsored by lager company Stella Artois.

Most of the trees were planted on the town's St Felix Meadow, off Noel Murless Drive, on Saturday with mulching and staking carried out on Sunday.

People of all ages took part in the events, which are the latest in the Go Wild group's bid to establish wildlife habitats in the area off the town's Yellow Brick Road footpath and cycle track.

Georgina grew up in Kent with foster parents until about three years ago, when she returned to her natural mother, Lynn Clarey.

Mrs Clarey, 45, said: "She was a very active girl but she was also stubborn and wanted things her own way."

"She loved horses and wanted me to get one and stick it in the back garden."

Georgina had hoped to work with horses and got an award at MidKent College, where she gained a City and Guilds qualification.

Mrs Clarey's husband, Mick, Georgina's stepfather, said: "Being stubborn was just a stage she was going through. She had a heart of gold."

"The paramedics and the hospital were wonderful. They gave us hourly updates at the hospital. She didn't deserve to go that way. Nobody does."

Georgina's brother, Robert, 24, said council officials had last year asked residents whether they wanted street lighting on the road.

He said: "If the council had got their act together and put up the lights there's a chance she would still be alive. It's very dark along that road."

Police investigators were continuing inquiries and are understood to have taken the Volkswagen Scirocco car involved away for examination.

Anyone with information should contact the Cambridgeshire roads policing unit on 0345 456 4564.

Waste sites face axe to cut costs

Seven out of 18 county sites set for closure at start of May

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

HOUSEHOLD waste sites are set to be closed as part of the county council's savings plan.

The sites in Newmarket and Haverhill could be on a list of seven set to close out of a total of 18 across Suffolk, which are set to be made public at a county council meeting today.

The county council is refusing to reveal the list in advance of the meeting.

Cuts in opening hours are also planned at the remaining sites.

The possible closures have already come under fire.

Cllr Keith Bovill, Newmarket's deputy mayor, said: "This is not good news – it will only increase fly tipping."

"The site is a valuable resource for the town that is well used."

"Its closure would have an adverse effect on the town and I shall suggest it should be discussed at the next town council meeting."

Warning: Cllr Keith Bovill.

Debate: Cllr Lisa Chambers.

Dullingham resident Lesley Bird said: "It's ridiculous. They want us to recycle and help the environment but they are suggesting that we use more petrol by taking our waste to Mildenhall."

Cllr Lisa Chambers, the county council's portfolio holder for waste who also represents Red Lodge and Newmarket, said she could not reveal the list of sites before a debate on the principle of the closures.

"It would be difficult to consult in advance of the announcement because nobody will want to lose their local site," she said.

"This is not a position we wanted to be in. We have to find £42 million in savings. It's going to be difficult for all communities."

Cllr Chambers said that £2.35 million was being cut from the county's waste and recycling budget. The site closures would save £800,000 and further savings would be made by reducing the opening hours at the remaining sites.

The closures are set to take place from May 1. The sites are run by contractor WRG (Waste Recycling Group) on behalf of the council.

Cllr Chambers said any job losses would be the responsibility of WRG.

■ At the same time the county council is trying to "divest" itself of 29 youth clubs, including Foley House in Newmarket, Mildenhall's Jubilee Centre club, Haverhill Hangar Youth Club and Clare Youth Club.

A consultation paper issued on Tuesday invited community groups to take them over to keep them running. It can be viewed by visiting www.suffolk.gov.uk/youthclub2011

The deadline for comments and bids is March 31.

Man jailed for Valentine's Day wounding

A MAN has been jailed for a Valentine's Day attack which left his victim with facial fractures.

Dylan Houghton, 29, was seen sitting astride Ian Furze outside the Bull pub in High Street, Newmarket, and continually punching him in the face.

Houghton, of Carter Street, Fordham, was jailed for 10 months when he appeared for sentencing at Ipswich Crown Court.

He had earlier admitted a charge of wounding.

Samantha Leigh, prosecuting, said that bar staff had heard a thudding sound coming from outside the pub and saw Houghton sitting astride another man on February 14 last year.

The thudding sound was being caused by Houghton repeatedly punching the man, said Miss Leigh.

Staff from the pub told him to stop the attack but Houghton hit the man about three more times.

After being arrested Houghton said he believed the man, who had struck him first, was armed with a knife.

Houghton's victim suffered cuts to his eyes and lip, as well as fractures to his eyesocket and a broken nose.

Thomas Brown, in mitigation, said that Houghton had initially been acting in lawful self defence but went beyond what he was entitled to do.

He said: "Trouble found Mr Houghton. He didn't look for it. He was forced to react to something that was happening to him."

■ Last May, Houghton successfully opposed a drink banning order.

Magistrates heard about the same incident in a legal move by Forest Heath District Council and Suffolk police to get an order to ban Houghton from all licensed premises in Newmarket.

At the time Houghton did not face criminal charges for the attack.

Magistrate Alan Humphreys said they would not make an order, under the Violent Crime Reduction Act, because it would be "disproportionate."

Town remembers bomb attack

MEMORIES of a Second World War bombing raid which devastated Newmarket High Street have gone on display to mark the 70th anniversary of the attack.

The raid, which left around 20 people dead and 200 injured, is being commemorated by Newmarket Local History Society, which is staging a display of personal recollections and photographs in the town's library.

The tailfins of one of the bombs, which for many years were used as an umbrella stand by a town solicitor, are also on display. The exhibition will remain at the library for a month.

The society is updating its booklet, One Afternoon in February, which includes personal accounts of the day, with additional material which has come in since it was first published.

A CD and DVD are also being produced by the society.

A service to remember those who died or were injured will be held tomorrow at the town's All Saints' Church at 10.30am – almost exactly the time that a lone German aircraft dropped its bombs on the town.

New move to beat thefts from vans

IDENTITY marks are to be stamped on exhaust system components of vans and trucks to combat a rising number of thefts.

Catalytic converters, which can cost around £1,000, are being stolen regularly from parked vehicles in the Newmarket and Mildenhall areas.

Police are now offering a free marking service to deter thieves.

Vehicle registration numbers will be stamped or engraved on the converters, which will also be marked with heat-resistant paint.

Officers from Safer Neighbourhood Teams will be applying the markings at the East of England Ambulance Service's repair depot off the A11, at the Milford service area at Barton Mills next Tuesday between 10am and 4pm.

Det Insp Andy Footer said: "It can take just minutes for a thief to remove the catalytic converter from your vehicle – but now it can take even less time to get yours marked."

"I would particularly encourage drivers of vehicles such as Ford Rangers and Mercedes Sprinter vans to come along, as these are the vehicles most targeted. A letter has been sent to registered owners of vehicles we believe to be at risk."

He appealed for anyone spotting a theft in progress to call 999.

Hundreds helped by SOS bus team

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

MORE than 500 weekend revellers have been helped by an SOS bus in Newmarket High Street.

One person seeking help at the bus, in Newmarket High Street, had suffered a fractured skull, and another needed an airway inserted to help them breathe.

St John Ambulance personnel, who work alongside other volunteers on the bus, have also treated victims of fights, a road accident, an attempted suicide and someone vomiting blood, drunkenness and girls who have fallen in their high heeled shoes.

visitor's book at the bus said: "I fell over and hurt my knee, but I love my shoes, so thank you for helping me get home safely."

The St John Ambulance dealt with 111 people requiring medical attention.

The converted bus cost around £75,000 to set up with the aid of grants from councils and government bodies. It went operational in October, 2009.

A section of the bus is equipped like an ambulance to deal with casualties. The other part has seating where people can "chill out" and have a warm drink.

Members of Forest Heath District Council's overview and scrutiny committee will receive a report on its first 15 months of operations at their meeting today.

It was set up by the West Suffolk Community Safety Partnership, in conjunction with the Newmarket Community Partnership, in response to a need for a facility for some of the 2,000 revellers drawn to Newmarket on busy weekends. It followed several deaths from drug overdoses and a rise in drink-related incidents in the town.

The report to councillors shows that serious violence, disorder and harassment has reduced since the introduction of the bus.

But Lesley-Ann Keogh, the council's community safety co-ordinator, said the crime reduction could not be solely attributed to the presence of the bus.

She said Home Office funding had helped to keep the bus going and further cash was being sought from charities and businesses.

Police appeal after woman followed through town centre

A WOMAN'S mobile phone was stolen after she was followed in the early hours of Sunday morning.

The incident happened after the 27-year-old woman was approached by a man as she was sitting outside a nightclub in Newmarket at around 4am.

She told the police that the man was rude so she walked off along the High Street towards the Clocktower. The man followed and offered her alcohol and drugs. She went to a nearby filling station and the man also went there, and left after buying something.

She later discovered her mobile phone was missing.

The man is described as white, in his 50s, 6ft tall, of large build, balding with very short fair or grey hair and was wearing a grey-green jumper, an orange shirt and navy trousers.

Put our children before horses

Sir, I find it very upsetting and disturbing that the employees of Forest Heath District Council's strategic services department have decided in their infinite wisdom to allow the Home of Horse Racing Project the full use of the land, namely Paddock House Paddock, and not to allow All Saints Primary School much-needed land for play areas and sports facilities, which are desperately needed because of the incoming two-tier system. The paddock is going to be used for a racehorse rehabilitation and assessment centre, which will be really nice for the children to stand and watch the horses run freely around a lush paddock while they cannot.

You would have thought common sense would have prevailed here, but it appears the lunatics are running the asylum. Newmarket is being denied amenities for children and adults alike who have no connection to racing because of outdated, poorly thought out core strategies and the dreaded 12.4 horse racing policy. These need to be urgently reviewed – enough is enough.

FHDC give horses and tourism priority over children and the community they appear to serve – this is now clear for all to see.

Library's future concerns me

Sir, I am very concerned about the possible closure of Newmarket library.

Now I read about the plans for a new bus shelter in The Rookery (I and many others refuse to call it the Guineas).

Why couldn't the new tourist information department, in part of the council offices by the bus station, be a waiting room? The present information department could be moved to share the library premises.

Cheveley

A MEETING of Cheveley Parish Council was held last Tuesday. Prior to the meeting, a presentation was given by Paul Sutton, of Cheffins Estate Agents, in respect of an affordable housing proposal on an area of paddock land with frontage between 199 and 209 High Street Cheveley. This indicated 13 affordable accommodation dwellings and three private sale properties on the site.

The need for affordable housing in the village had been established in a housing needs survey undertaken in 2009. Concern was expressed by members of the public who live in near to the site that they had not been consulted. It was emphasised that the purpose of the presentation was to seek the views of the parish council prior to any action being taken by the client, and that no planning application has been made and this was not a planning application consultation. Parish councillors discussed this matter when the meeting was formally opened and it was agreed that consultation was important for development proposals. In order for the parish council to come to an informed view, a working party should be established to investigate further the provision of affordable housing in the parish.

■ Two new councillors for the South Ward, Betty Hedges and Rick Humphries, were welcomed to the parish council. Following their co-option, the parish council now have their full complement of councillors.

■ Following concern expressed at the previous meeting about areas where weeds were growing through the recently completed cemetery path, the clerk reported that she had received a report from the company that built the path, who did not consider that there were any faults with the construction. It was decided that the condition of the path would be monitored before any remedial work was considered.

■ In the light of the exceptional problems encountered by residents of and visitors to the Duchess Park Development during the icy weather earlier in the winter, it was agreed to supply two additional grit bins for the affected area from S106 allocation funding. The grit for the bins would be purchased by the residents' association. The bins would initially be placed where the residents considered the major problems to be. However, once the roads became formally adopted it may be necessary to relocate them to comply with the Highway Authority regulations.

■ The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, March 8 at 7.30pm in the Community Room at Cheveley School.

■ A meeting of Cheveley pavilion and recreation ground charity followed, where the issue of dogs being walked off-lead, together with other nuisance and anti-social behaviour on the recreation ground, were discussed. While by-laws and fixed penalty notices are in place against dog fouling, there are none regarding the exercising of dogs off-lead. It was agreed that this activity should not cause nuisance, disturbance or distress to other recreational ground users and all users of the recreation ground should act in a responsible and considerate manner.

Truck driver is jailed over A14 death crash

BY ALICE HUTTON

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

A LORRY driver who took his eyes off the road for 20 seconds and killed a popular college tutor has begun a jail sentence.

Father-of-four Simon Bendall died in a pile up on the A14 in April last year after a heavy goods vehicle ploughed into the back of his car at 47mph.

The 53-year-old, of Robins Close, Isleham, was queuing to get off the westbound carriageway at Milton on his way to work when his Vauxhall Astra was hit.

Melvyn Gillett, 44, had pleaded guilty to causing death by dangerous driving at Cambridge Crown Court at an earlier hearing and was sentenced to 16 months in prison last Thursday.

Prosecutor Sara Walker told the court how the haulier's speed control limit on his vehicle, which should have been 50mph, had been set to 56mph and that the driver had failed to notice queuing warning signs, braking just two seconds before the crash.

Stuart Driver QC, mitigating, said Gillett, of Croft Park Road, Littleport, was a religious man and was "tearful, expressing guilt, sorrow and sadness".

He said: "He is in a state of remorse. It is a grave lack of due care and attention."

Judge Gareth Hawkesworth paid tribute to the "immense dignity" of the Bendall family.

Family man: Simon Bendall's daughters, Lizzie, Becky and Hannah with his youngest brother, Jerry, outside Cambridge Crown Court. Top right, driver Melvyn Gillett, who was jailed for 16 months for causing the death of college tutor Simon Bendall, above right.

He said: "Everybody in this county knows how dangerous the A14 can be, and particularly those who drive heavy goods vehicles have to take the greatest care. Plainly you must have failed to see the signs for a significant amount of time."

"The consequence was that a family man lost his life. The family of the deceased have behaved with immense dignity."

Following the sentencing of Gillett, Simon Bendall's brother Jerry, 51, of Windsor Road, Newmarket, issued a statement on behalf of the family, including Simon's daughters, Lizzie, 27, Becky, 23, Hannah, 20 and his son Joey, 26.

He said: "As a family we wouldn't want any other family to go through the ordeal we have been through over the last three months."

"We would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr Gillett for pleading guilty at the first opportunity."

Study support tutor Mr Bendall worked at Cambridge Regional College for 20 years and staff described him as a "tremendous man and a highly valued colleague".

Gillett was also banned from driving for 18 months and will need to re-sit his test.

Police in hunt for van man

POLICE want to trace a van driver who offered a teenage girl a lift while she waited for a bus.

The 16-year-old was waiting in Eldo Gardens, West Row at about 8.55am last Thursday when the van pulled up.

The girl refused the offer of a lift from the man at the wheel of the van and he drove off.

The driver was described as white, around 34 years old, of muscular build, bald with light coloured eyes and what the girl described as "perfect" teeth.

He was driving a Transit-type white van with blue and red writing on the side.

Anyone with information should call Pc Paul Osmond at Mildenhall Police on (01284) 774100 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Pub celebrates beer award

A TOP award for beer has gone to The Olde Bull Inn at Barton Mills.

The inn was named pub of the month by CAMRA – the Campaign for Real Ale. Sonia Hickman, manager of The Olde Bull, said: "This is a fantastic start to the year for us and it is an award that means a lot to the whole team."

Builders stumble on ancient coins at homes site

NEARLY 100 artefacts, believed to date from Roman times, have been found on a housing site.

Archaeologists called in to carry out investigations on the site of a new housing development at the Smoke House in Beck Row, discovered more than 40 coins, three pots, a ceramic oil lamp, a bronze brooch and a lead pendant.

Some items were put on display at open days staged by the developers, Persimmon Homes Anglia, at the new housing scheme, which is to be called Sycamore Park.

Shaun Marjoram, construction director for Persimmon Homes Anglia, said: "It was fantastic to be able to offer the local residents the opportunity to come down to the site and learn about their heritage."

Some of the artefacts are expected to end up in Mildenhall museum.

Blast from the past: potter specialist Andrew Peachy, local resident Chris Melia, Mildenhall museum trustee Joe Moore and Brent Titlow, Persimmon Homes site manager.

TRADING standards officers have met residents to discuss extending "no cold calling" zones which ban doorstep trading. They were among council staff, police officers and residents at the latest street meeting organised by Cllr Bill Sadler, who represents Exning and Newmarket on Suffolk County Council. The two-hour meeting outside shops in Valley Way, Newmarket, also included a representative from Racing Welfare, the charity which supports people who work in the town's horseracing industry.

Legion seeks new secretary

A NEW secretary is needed for the Newmarket and District Royal British Legion branch. Long-serving secretary Peter Booth has stood down and a replacement is being sought. Anyone interested in the role should contact Mr Sadler on (01638) 666117.

Youngsters help to plant fruit of the future

A NEW orchard of apple and pear trees has been planted at a charity's organic farm. The scheme at the Prospects Trust's Snakehall Farm, near Reach, has been supported by The Tree Council. Children from the Little Windmills pre-school helped plant the trees, together with young adults with learning difficulties from Granta School. The Tree Council gave a grant towards the 36 trees, which should produce traditional and organic varieties of fruit. Barcham Trees, based near Ely, donated a tree and tree ties. The charity, which provides work experience for people with learning disabilities, is also running an "adopt an apple or parent a pear" scheme. Pauline Buchanan Black, director general of the Tree Council, said: "With threats to the future on all sides, the actions of the Prospects Trust will be an important part of the much bigger picture of safeguarding the environment."

Jail warning as lead thief is sentenced

A LEAD thief was caught after a vehicle he was using was photographed outside the building where the roof had been stripped. Ty Aldrich, 29, avoided an immediate jail sentence after he admitted stealing lead from the roof of a former council hostel for homeless families. But Judge David Goodin, at Ipswich Crown Court, warned him that he would be locked up if he breached a community sentence, which includes 200 hours of unpaid work. He will also be electronically tagged to enforce a 12-week curfew between 7pm and 6am. Aldrich, of Park Lane in Newmarket, was also ordered to pay £50 towards the prosecution costs. Prosecutor Michael Crimp said Aldrich and another man took the lead from the roof at Rockfield House in Bury Road, Newmarket, on July 8. The former hostel was empty at the time and was being sold by Forest Heath District Council. People visiting a neighbouring property became suspicious and photographed the vehicle that the thieves were using. After his arrest, Aldrich said he had only been driving the vehicle, but Mr Crimp said a witness saw two men passing lead over a fence. Richard Potts, in mitigation, said that Aldrich maintained that he had not physically removed the lead from the boarded-up building, but he regretted his involvement. The court heard that Aldrich had a number of previous convictions, including burglary and resisting arrest.

Gas pipe scuppers tree plan

PLANS to plant trees in Newmarket High Street have been dropped after a survey revealed a gas main lying beneath the pavement. The £3,000 scheme has been withdrawn by Newmarket Town Council, but councillors are still hoping they can instead plant small trees in existing tubs along the street. Cllr Keith Bovill, deputy mayor, said at a meeting of the town council's community services committee: "A survey showed it's very unlikely we will be able to plant trees in the locations we wanted to because of a gas main." Cllr Bill Burch, former mayor, said: "There's not only gas, there's water, sewage and other services. "This scheme was something which was suggested to the people of Newmarket by councillors. "I think they got a bit carried away when they saw the scheme (carried out by Suffolk County Council) in The Avenue. "That looks a picture, but it will not work in the High Street." Cllr Joy Uney said: "There must be suitable trees that can go in the planters on the High Street and give a good display."

Deadline looms for snowdrop display

SNOWDROPS carpeting large parts of a private garden are on display until the end of the month. Chippenham Park's garden, which dates from the 17th century, is open each weekend throughout February. Last year's first series of public open weekends attracted around 2,500 visitors, despite falling snow.

The site has been developed by Anne Crawley, a member of the Tharp family which has owned the garden for more than 200 years. Later in the spring there will be more open days to see the daffodils. For more information visit www.chippenhamparkgarden.info or call (01638) 720221.

Charity event will have French polish

A SPECTACULAR Moulin Rouge Charity Ball will be held at Chilford Hall in Linton this summer.

Businesses have attended the launch of one of the hottest events on the region's social calendar – with a French twist.

A Parisian breakfast kick-started the run-up to the ball, which will be held in aid of the Cambridge Newspapers' community fund, Press Relief, and the Arthur Rank Hospice Charity.

One of the biggest fundraising events in the region, it will feature a spectacular show with can-can dancers and stilt-walkers.

Andy Gough, chairman of Press Relief, and Lynn Morgan, chief executive of Arthur Rank Hospice Charity, hosted the French breakfast presentation, explaining to local businesses how they can get involved.

And the charities have put out a plea for businesses to sponsor the ball and to buy tickets or donate auction items for the event.

Ms Morgan said: "It looks like it will be a thrilling evening with a wonderful French theme."

"We are so grateful that Press Relief has allowed us to be part of such an amazing event and we are urging businesses and individuals to sponsor the evening and enjoy a great time to support two very worthy causes."

Cambridge-based Arthur Rank House hospice provides specialist care and support to adult patients and their family, friends and carers free of charge and is offered to people living throughout much of the county.

Press Relief is a fund run by the News through which good causes are given vital funds.

For information on how to get involved, and ticket sales, contact Amanda Scarborough on (01223) 434378 or amanda.scarborough@cambridge-news.co.uk, or Hannah Bennett on (01223) 723115 or hannah.bennett@arhc.org.uk.

Tickets for the fundraising ball, which takes place on June 24, cost £85 and £850 for a table of 10.

Group to consider re-opening station

HOPES of re-opening a town's railway station after 46 years could become a reality.

A study is being launched this spring to discover the costs, timescales and scope of potentially re-opening Soham railway station.

The project will be carried out by Network Rail on behalf of East Cambridgeshire District Council and Cambridgeshire County Council.

Re-opening the station would provide a train service in Soham – and a direct link to Ely and Cambridge.

District councillor Tony Parramint, whose ward is Soham South, said: "Those of us who live in Soham know how important re-opening the railway station is."

"A lot has changed since 1965, but the demand for rail travel is as strong as ever."

"During the public consultation for the Soham Masterplan Vision, 80 per cent of residents surveyed said the re-opening of the rail station was crucial to the future development of the town."

The study will cost £37,000 and is being funded entirely by Cambridgeshire Horizons Housing Growth Funds.

Residents and community leaders have been campaigning for years for the station to be re-opened.

The station opened in 1879, when the Ely to Newmarket railway line was built, and for years was a focal point of town life. But on June 2, 1944, it was destroyed after a consignment of bombs travelling through the town exploded at the station.

The station was never rebuilt but a platform was and services ran to Cambridge again, before the station was finally closed in 1965.

Rosie helped with 'dream pregnancy'

AMUM is supporting The Rosie Hospital Appeal after giving birth successfully following four miscarriages.

Lucy Roberts has praised the support she and her husband, Tommy, were given by hospital staff after the miscarriages and through the "dream pregnancy" that led to the birth of their son Beau, who celebrates his second birthday tomorrow.

Lucy, 33, of Aureole Walk, on Newmarket's Studlands Park Estate, said: "We didn't have counselling, but they were just very patient and didn't make you feel like you were being a pain. No-one talks about losing babies and miscarriages. They talk about the happy things."

"But the staff were very kind when I rang up in a panic. It's that sort of thing you don't hear about enough."

During the pregnancy with Beau, Lucy took part in the POPS – Pregnancy Outcome Prediction Study – which involved additional scans to check on progress.

"I think the Rosie is just a really good place," said Lucy, who works part-time with adults with learning disabilities. "We had amazing midwives and amazing care. It's not a criticism of the hospital, but they do need extra space."

"We spent a lot of time in Daphne ward where there is only one waiting room. It was really hard to see happy parents with their new babies and we were sitting there being very unhappy after a miscarriage."

"I started off on the midwife-led unit and I got the impression that there weren't many beds, so it would be good to see that unit enlarged."

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

Lucy said staff were happy to make sure it was her husband who told her the sex of the baby as she had wished – although he was not in the delivery room but was waiting in the corridor.

"We were both convinced it would be a boy, but I wanted Tommy to tell me," she said.

"I felt the staff cared about us and we weren't on a production line."

Later this year, possibly May or June, Lucy and her friends hope to organise a "wedding dress picnic" in which former brides will be sponsored to wear their wedding dresses at a picnic in Cambridge to raise money for the appeal.

She said: "I think it's a shame that wedding dresses only get worn once and then put away, so it would be a good chance to have some fun and raise money at the same time."

The Weekly News is supporting the campaign by urging our readers to help the Rosie provide the best possible care for mothers in the region – beyond the level the NHS can afford.

The extension will cost £30 million in total, with £23 million coming from the Government, but Addenbrooke's Charitable Trust (ACT) needs £7 million and is hoping £500,000 will be raised by the community.

We are asking our readers to help provide baby scan monitors, en-suite bathroom facilities and comfortable meeting areas for mums.

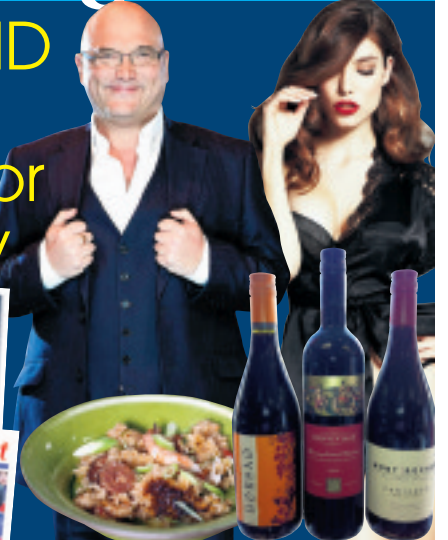

The hospital is straining under the pressure of a regional baby boom and the extension will boost the number of cots from 33 to 58.

Appeal aims for £500k to expand maternity care

THERE were smiles all round as mothers, doctors and civic leaders met for the official launch of The Rosie Hospital Campaign.

At a glitzy reception at John Lewis in Cambridge last week, some of the region's leading figures threw their support behind the appeal to raise £500,000 towards the £30 million cost of building an extension to the Cambridge maternity hospital.

Among the guests at the Grand Arcade brasserie were Dr Mary Archer, chairwoman of Cambridge University Hospitals; High Sheriff of Cambridgeshire Nigel Brown; TV presenter and writer Liz Fraser; Dr Pixie McKenna, from Channel 4's Embarassing Bodies; and the Rosie's clinical director Gerry Hackett.

Those attending the event enjoyed food, champagne and entertainment from a string quartet provided by John Lewis.

Sanchia Norris, of Fen Drayton – whose son Ben was born 16 weeks early weighing just 1lb 12oz – spoke movingly of her time at the Rosie since Ben's birth on November 26.

She said: "It's not just about growing a building, it's about saving lives.

"The equipment these babies need is absolutely amazing and we are helping to buy this stuff."

Dr Pixie McKenna, said: "It was so moving to hear Sanchia's story.

"She is an ambassador for the campaign and explained so perfectly why so many people need this hospital."

Dr Mary Archer, who, with novelist husband Lord Jeffrey Archer, has donated a "significant amount" to the campaign, said: "The Rosie is a victim of its own success.

"These new facilities will give us extra space to provide care for so many more babies, especially premature ones."

The Weekly News is supporting the campaign by urging our readers to help the Rosie provide the best possible care for mothers in the region – beyond the level which the NHS can afford.

Early years education is crucial

THE more research that is undertaken to study the importance of early learning for kids, the more evidence is found to support the idea that the early years have huge implications on a child's later life.

Learning patterns which are set in your child's formative years will affect their brain development, and set lifelong learning skills. Successful teaching will put into practice social skills, greater problem solving abilities, strong communication skills and it can help to curb behavioural problems.

Researchers believe the brain develops most of its neurons, and is most receptive to learning up to the age of three, meaning your young child's mind is like a soft sponge, ready to absorb lots of new information.

The best part is that young children relish asking questions, discovering things and lots of play, so while they take in all this new information, you can be sure they are having fun.

A good nursery teacher can encourage a child's natural curiosity, whilst keeping them safe from harm, by introducing them to new experiences, tastes and textures, and other children. Interaction is incredibly important for children, as here they learn boundaries, fairness and equality and, most importantly, friendships.

Early years education has taken huge leaps forward in the past three decades, with hundreds of new practices and principles being developed to improve your child's life. Messy play with paints, water and sand, singing songs and dancing and being read to are all important steps which can help your child develop.

Of course, it's not all about your kids. Knowing your children are happy and learning plenty will allow you to relax – at least, as much as any parent ever can!

Finding your way in the world: Nursery education plays a vital role – and helps you relax.

Lions' cash will help fund hospice

A HOSPICE has received more than £3,200 raised through an annual charity collection.

Mildenhall Lions raised the money from its annual tour of Santa and his sleigh through the town and surrounding villages.

St Nicholas Hospice Care, the Bury St

Edmunds-based charity which supports people from west Suffolk with serious and terminal illnesses, was chosen to receive the proceeds from this year's tour.

Lions club member Brian Harvey said local charities were invited to submit an application saying why they should be selected to benefit from the sleigh route event, which has been running for more than 10 years.

"We have had several people that have been supported by the hospice in recent years, so that was one of the main reasons we chose it," he said. A cheque for £3,266 was presented to hospice community fundraiser Sue Long.

She said: "We are absolutely delighted the Lions chose us as their charity. This was the third time we applied and we were thrilled to have been successful."

Ofsted report notes school's improvement

A VILLAGE school is enjoying a "new beginning" after being placed in special measures last year.

Kettlefields Primary School in Dullingham has been making "satisfactory" improvements, according to the latest monitoring report by an Ofsted inspector.

This follows an inspection in September, in which the school was rated as "inadequate".

The former head, Carol Meek, subsequently resigned and has been replaced by Elaine Lynch, as interim head.

She has previously worked for the county education authority as an inspector and will stay at the school for as long as required to bring about improvements.

A new deputy head has also been appointed at the school on a one-year contract.

David Jones, Ofsted inspector, said a visit in January showed the school was making satisfactory progress.

He said in his report: "The new leadership team has established a positive mood among the staff, and parents and carers comment that there has been a 'new beginning'."

Mr Jones said Year 6 pupils' results in last year's national tests were better than the previous year, and were above the national average in English and mathematics.

He said progress in teaching was "at least satisfactory on all occasions and good for some individuals and groups".

He found that pupils' behaviour was satisfactory overall but some pupils "disengaged" during lessons, and others were distracted by those around them.

Parents should be sent letters giving details of their child's progress and attitude to learning, he suggested.

He said an informal chat with parents and carers at the school gate had shown that they had renewed confidence in the new leadership team.

They also felt that behaviour had improved and communications with families was better.

The school governors have produced a new newsletter, which is issued every half term to keep parents up-to-date with the progress being made.

Charity shop in appeal for clothing donations

GOOD quality clothing is needed to stock a new charity shop

The RSPCA shop in Market Street, Newmarket, which opened on Monday, needs more items to sell.

Cash raised at the new shop will help fund the Eddington Clinic in Whitehill Road, Cambridge, which provides low-cost veterinary care for pet owners on benefits, such as pensioners and those who get working tax credits.

Rosemary Rodd, membership secretary for the branch, said: "In 2010, the clinic provided 4,165 treatments at the clinic for animals that might otherwise have gone without."

"We are finding more and more people are using the clinic because some pet owners are struggling financially."

Potential donors are asked to call the shop first on 07766 502 032 if they want to drop off stock.

This woman was once the face behind the news...

...in fact Sunita worked for her Grandfather at their newsagency in the North of England. From 6am to 6pm, 7 days a week she could be found behind the counter where she always kept a warm welcome for the local and regular customers. More recently though, her Grandfather suffered a serious motor accident and the shop was forced to close. Out of work Sunita struggled to make ends meet while she nursed her Grandfather. That was when an ex-customer notified NewstrAid who quickly stepped in to help.

There are many people in the news distribution trade - some young and some not so young, who just like Sunita have fallen on hard times, others have retired or are unable to work due to disability. Perhaps you know of someone.

BAD GIRL: Josie Walker as Street siren Elsie Tanner. Inset, John Harvey.

On the cobbles

How do you go about fitting 50 years of a heritage rich in both high drama and deft comic touches, into a live, two-hour stage show? The answer, according to Jonathan Harvey – who has done just that for his new show based on half a century of Coronation Street – is to insist on a researcher to help you plough through endless episodes, as well using the top five storylines of every year to get the basic structure in place.

Amazingly, Harvey managed to write the show in three months because, he explains, “it being theatre, they’d already booked a venue and practically done the posters before they hired the writer”.

He describes it as a “laborious process” but, looking at the soap’s top storylines, he “realised that there were certain names that cropped up a lot, so I thought they must be my main characters. That was Ken and Deirdre Barlow and Gail Platt”.

His patient researcher had to list every episode the three had appeared in, for Harvey to pick the most important moments, before being re-dispatched to watch and transcribe the key episodes.

Once the main characters were established, Harvey set about adding in some of the show’s other popular characters.

“I tried to piece together a play which told the story of Ken and Receiving its world premiere in Cambridge last week, Corrie! celebrates 50 years of the world’s longest-running – and, let’s face it, best – soap. Writer Jonathan Harvey and star Gaynor Faye tell LIZZY DENING why it’s a bit like The Rocky Horror Show . . . with hairnets Deirdre and Gail, but peppered with the more comedic scenes of the characters who never carried massive stories but were integral to the show, like Hilda Ogden and Bet Lynch.

“Slowly but surely, I cobbled together some coherent story out of the mounds of paper. I must have killed several rainforests writing this play.”

The play features a cast of five, who swap characters and costumes, as well as Gaynor Faye (who played Judy Mallett in the soap) as the narrator. Harvey says audiences should be prepared for a lively night out.

Faithful fans of the programme will get a kick out of recognising classic moments, and the atmosphere during the show’s preliminary run was “like going to see The Rocky Horror Show or something, the audience were practically joining in, shouting ‘don’t do it Gail!’”

Harvey cut his teeth as a playwright in his native Liverpool, winning a London Standard Theatre Award for his production Babies.

Working across a 50-year period is nothing new to him; his most recent play, Canary, also covered this time frame, albeit covering serious issues such as gay rights and HIV rather than the tangled lives of Weatherfield residents.

His background of writing about gay issues, as well as his personal experience, no doubt informed his first assignment on Coronation Street in 2004, helping to script Todd Grimshaw’s first homosexual relationship.

Although he didn’t write any of the tram crash episodes, both the Christmas and New Year’s Eve episodes were appointed to Harvey.

However, he keeps tight-lipped about future plots, as well as refusing to let slip any storylines which have been deemed too ridiculous for the show.

Over its first 50 years, the show has clocked up 7,487 episodes, featured 114 deaths and seen an estimated 200,000 hotpots being served at the Rovers.

And the key to its successful formula, Harvey believes, is simple.

“I think they’ve always attracted the best talent, so consistently there’s always been good storytelling and a strong sense of humour.

“I think that’s what kept it going so long.”

A funny thing happened in Palestine . . .

In 2009, with just a backpack, boots and a cameraman, Mark Thomas – rambler, activist and comedian – set off on an unusual hike: to walk the entire length of the Israeli Separation Barrier.

Sleeping in barns and garages along the way, and encountering several “mildly terrifying” encounters with the Israeli army, it certainly wasn’t your average weekend pup-to-pub potter. So what made him do it? His initial answer is surprisingly sanguine.

“To get from A to B,” he says, unruffled. “It was like any trail. In some ways it was a bit like walking Hadrian’s Wall – only slightly more current. It was also to find out about the place and what was going on there,” he adds.

“Everyone from Obama to Osama mentions Palestine and the West Bank, and I felt I didn’t know enough. Walking and talking is a great way to discover things.”

Thomas discusses his Middle Eastern experience in his latest show, Extreme Rambling (Walking The Wall), which comes to The Junction in Cambridge on Monday and Tuesday.

“I’ve travelled around a bit but this was my first time in the Middle East. Lots of things strike you,” he says. “Every day was incredibly intense; we were detained by the Israeli army on our very first day. But I also noticed how beautiful a place it is. The land is incredibly fertile. People are showing you round groves of tangerines, and there are tortoises sitting on grass verges as soldiers scream at you. The place is full of irony.”

The wall, which encircles 300,000 Palestinians, was erected in 2003 in the hope of containing Palestinian terrorism. It is patrolled by Israeli Army Police, who control the only exits. These checkpoints in particular are often scenes for fighting between the two sides. Wasn’t Thomas concerned about the risks involved?

Thomas is no stranger to putting himself in the midst of politically-charged situations. He received a Kurdish National Congress Medal of Honour following his campaign against the building of the Ilisu dam in Turkey, and made it into the Guinness World Records for organising the most number of protests on a single day in defiance of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005.

So far, so serious; but his show is billed as stand-up. So where does the comedy fit in?

“The comedy is in the stories,” he explains. “I go on a walk then come back and tell the stories. Some of them are funny, some are pretty extreme – if anyone expects Michael McIntyre Live at the Apollo, get your refund.”

Thomas grew up in London and worked in stand-up before launching his career-shaping “political comedy show”, The Mark Thomas Comedy Product, in the 90s.

WALK ON: Mark Thomas.

Aired on Channel 4, one programme investigated how to avoid inheritance tax, resulting in Gordon Brown, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, changing the law to close-up the exposed loophole.

This fusion of entertainment and politics has continued throughout his career, though Thomas is reluctant to label his work.

Overall, the aim of Walking The Wall is to spread awareness in a way which is accessible to all, tending towards the positive rather than the preachy.

One thing Thomas is sure about, however, are his feelings towards the wall itself.

“The wall is a horrendous thing, it divides up cities. Some see it as a demographic barrier, some as a security barrier, but it’s not.

“In my opinion, the wall doesn’t work. That’s the problem. It can’t stop the suicide bombers – which is why it was set up. I could see how the Israelis thought they had come up with a solution, but are just pretending to solve a problem. I think that’s the thing I learnt. What it does it isolate two communities, not one.”

The big film

TRUE GRIT certificate 15 110m

JOHN Wayne won a Best Actor Oscar – from his only nomination – as gunslinger Rooster Cogburn in Henry Hathaway’s 1969 version of True Grit. Almost 40 years later, Jeff Bridges is nominated for the Oscar for the same role in Joel and Ethan Coen’s masterful reworking, that layers this tale of retribution with the brothers’ trademark black humour. It’s clear from his first appearance, shifting nervously in a courtroom witness stand, that Bridges is not paying homage to his predecessor. He mumbles as if he is permanently chewing tobacco, spitting out polished one-liners like bullets. After a chaotic gunfight, he reneges on a promise to bury the fallen. So that’s how the west was won. “I was just 14 years of age when a coward by the name of Tom Chaney shot my father down and robbed him of his life,” explains

Mattie Ross (Hailee Steinfeld) in her opening voiceover. And so Mattie seeks out Marshal Rooster Cogburn (Bridges) and hires him to help her track down Tom Chaney (Josh Brolin), who has taken up with Lucky Ned Pepper (Barry Pepper) and his gang. A tenacious Texas Ranger (Matt Damon) joins in. True Grit has an impressive 10 Oscar nominations and deserves every one. Production design is impeccable, evoking the era when a gun spoke just as loudly as words. Steinfeld, who was 13 when the film was made, is a revelation as the daughter on a quest for vengeance. Bridges is a hoot but some of his best lines are impossible to understand through his garbled delivery. The Coens canter through the brilliantly orchestrated gun fights but always remain focused on the characters and the delightful relationship between Mattie and Rooster.

More green cars about

SINCE the launch of the Next Green Car Approved list in November, the number of searches and views for Approved models has increased by a significant 28 per cent.

"We are delighted in the interest in the NGC Approved list," says Melanie Shufflebotham of nextgreencar.com. "Our aim was to provide an independently selected up-to-date list highlighting the best of the best green cars and it seems that car buyers are responding to this – now they are able to identify the low emission cars that both suit their needs and are good for the environment."

THE FIAT QUBO: Leading MPV for low CO2.

The NGC Approved list, an independently selected list of the best green cars, currently has more than 100 models. The following have recently been added:

Hyundai i10 1.0l and Hyundai i30 1.6l: Hyundai's recent focus on low emission vehicles has been rewarded – the new i10 is a nifty sub-100g CO2/km, tax and congestion charge exempt city car while the i30 is in the small family class, a diesel with a CO2 figure of 110g/km.

Vauxhall Astra Sport Tourer 1.3 CDTi: This estate has CO2 emissions of 109g/km.

Ford C-Max 1.6 Duratorq TDCi and Grand C-Max 1.6 Duratorq TDCi: Both have solid tail-pipe CO2 emissions of 119g/km and 129g/km respectively.

Fiat Qubo 1.3 Multijet 95: Leading MPV with CO2 emissions of 112g/km.

Saab 9-3 Saloon 1.9TTiD and Saab 9-3 SportWagon 1.9TTiD: Just below the BMW 320d Efficient Dynamics model, the class leader.

Skoda Yeti GreenLine 1.6 CR TDI: With CO2 emissions of only 119g/km, the Skoda Yeti GreenLine becomes the first Approved SUV.

Aston Martin city car makes its svelte debut in the region

LANCASTER Cambridge hosted a launch event for the Aston Martin Cygnet at its Harston showroom last week.

The showroom was filled for the evening as more than 120 people took the time to check out Aston Martin's first-ever city car, a £30,995 set of wheels fired by a 97bhp 1.33-litre VVTi petrol engine, capable of 0-62mph in 11.6 seconds (with MultiDrive) and offering a top speed of 106mph.

The Cygnet is on sale now with deliveries starting in June.

Built at an extension to Aston Martin's headquarters in Gaydon, Warwickshire, the new arrival is based on the Toyota iQ. The iQ's engine is at the heart of the vehicle, with the Aston body and interior taking more than 100 man-hours to develop.

THE ASTON MARTIN CYGNET: Lovely interior.

"It's a whole new chapter for Aston Martin," said the firm's UK sales manager Marcus Blake. "It's not just a flash in the pan, we're not poking a toe in the water – we're committed to it."

The entry-level Cygnet is priced at £30,995, with the automatic version priced at £32,115 and the Edition Black, complete with a five-piece luggage set, clocked in at £39,995.

Call Lancaster Cambridge on (01223) 875600 or go to www.lancasterastonmartin.com for full details.

Mazda tops latest satisfaction poll

IT'S almost time for the spring plate change, and the good news for Mazda is that it has topped a new customer satisfaction poll.

The brand and its dealers topped the automotive sector in the latest UK Customer Satisfaction Index with a score of 83.3 per cent, well above the car industry average of 78.4 per cent.

Every six months the Institute of Customer Service asks 26,000 people what they think about the service they've received from the UK's major organisations. The data is then collated and the results published as the UK Customer Satisfaction Index (UKCSI). The overall average score rose slightly from July 2010, from 75.6 to 76.7 per cent. The highest score in any sector was 89 per cent (for both Waitrose and John Lewis) and the lowest 56.8 per cent.

The top five results for cars in January's survey were:

Mazda: 83.3%
Volvo	81.5%
BMW/Mini	80.0%
Toyota	79.8%
Mercedes-Benz	79.6%

MAZDA: Both the vehicles and the dealership experience have conspired to keep UK customers in a satisfied state of mind.

Mazda's winning and improved score – up from 80.6 per cent in July last year – is also combined with clear market leadership for 'perceived value' versus rival brands, in terms of comparing costs with customer benefits.

"This survey result is another strong testament to the quality of our products, our customer service philosophy and the ability of Mazda dealers across the nation to focus on what UK motorists really want," comments Steve Jelliss, aftersales director, Mazda UK. "Top place, with a higher score, confirms that our whole organisation and franchise network continues to be focused on delivering a quality and professional service at a reasonable cost, to ensure that Mazda ownership is a truly satisfying experience."

ICS research also found that the Top 10 customer priorities in the UK are:

1. Overall quality of the product or service
2. Being treated as a valued customer
3. Speed of service
4. Friendliness of staff
5. Handling of problems and complaints
6. Handling of enquiries
7. Competence of staff
8. Ease of doing business

9. Being kept informed
10. Helpfulness of staff

The scores are worked out from consumers' answers to questions about these 10 priorities and other, more general ones relating to overall satisfaction and how likely customers are to stay with an organisation, recommend it to a friend and buy its products/ services again.

The twice-yearly survey covers more than 150 companies in the retail, financial, tourism, telecoms, transport and automotive sectors.

THE RENAULT CAPTUR: Due at upcoming Geneva Motor Show.

Renault Captur concept of the car beautiful

RENAULT is set to debut the Captur at the 2011 Geneva Motor Show.

Captur aims at a "simple, sensuous and warm style that will be progressively extended to future Renault car designs".

"Captur is a fun and sporty crossover, ideal for a young couple about to discover the world", explains director of design, Laurens Van den Acker.

Designer Julio Lozano says the main sources of inspiration were athletes and radical sports.

"In designing Captur, I began with the image of a sprinter on the starting blocks, his muscles tensed, and the energy unleashed when the starting pistol is fired," he explains. "The design also references equipment such as helmets, gloves and other protective gear used in radical sports, combining high technology with sophistication and lightness."

But Captur does more than simply stir the emotions: it is also a practical and versatile vehicle. It is fitted with a hard convertible top which, once removed, reveals a carbon fibre framework. Captur can thus transform itself from a coupé to a convertible, from an urban vehicle to an off-roader, while its overall sporty appeal is reinforced by its butterfly doors and big tyres fitted to 22-inch black and white rims.

Captur makes use of the Energy dCi 160 twin-turbo engine concept, developed from the new Energy dCi 130 that will eventually replace the 1.9 dCi. Downsizing is a key element in Renault's strategy to meet its declared objective of being Europe's leading automaker for low CO2 emissions.

The Energy dCi 160 twin-turbo fits perfectly within this strategy. It produces 160bhp from a capacity of 1.6 litres – that's a specific power output of 100hp per litre. Peak torque (380Nm) is available from as low as 1,750rpm, giving powerful acceleration from low revs, as well as refined performance under all driving conditions.

Paired with a dual clutch EDC gearbox, this driveline promises genuinely enjoyable driving with CO2 emissions of less than 99g per kilometre.

Definitely one to watch out for!

NEWMARKET just had the edge against Huntingdon, winning 30-25 with both Carter Wilder and Ben Le Maire scoring hat-tricks and 45-40 with Le Maire, Harrison Jones, and Sam Gibson on the scoresheet.

>> UNDER-10

PATRICK Bartram scored Newmarket's only try in their opening 10-5 defeat by Huntingdon, but a change of personnel for the second game left them struggling to gel and they lost 25-0. But with positions tweaked they were narrowly beaten 15-10 in the third game (tries: Freddie Tucker, Sam Howard).

>> UNDER-11

DESPITE a slow opening with a number of misplaced passes, Newmarket went on to beat Huntingdon 15-0 with tries from Josh Dadds and two late scores from Will Christie. They then recorded a 20-5 win (tries: Alex Coles, Christie, Joe May, James Downing) again after a close first half.

>> UNDER-13

A SUPERB team effort helped Newmarket do the double over Huntingdon this season, although the 57-5 scoreline did not give Huntingdon the credit they deserved for a spirited performance.

Newmarket's tries came from Owen Downing, Alex Sanderson, Ciaran Abrahams 2, Lewis Hall, Harry McNaughton, Harry Silvester 2, and Sam Wade. Max McNeill kicked six conversions.

>> UNDER-14

WITH both sides depleted by injury and unavailability, Newmarket and Ely joined forces to take on County Cup finalists Huntingdon, with the result that the combined team took time to gel and fell to a 36-17 defeat. Their tries came from George Miller, Louis Cope-Cornell and Ely's Jim Storey.

>> UNDER-15

THE last time Newmarket played Huntingdon was in the County Cup, and the Stags repeated their dominance with a 26-0 victory, taking advantage of missed tackles, lost balls and holes in the flat lines. However, the game was abandoned with almost 20 minutes to go when Joe Stafford was taken to hospital after dislocating his right shoulder.

>> UNDER-17

NEWMARKET continued on their winning ways with a 26-14 defeat of Wymondham, despite trailing 14-5 at half time. Man-of-the-match Adam Elmer scored their first-half try but they hit back after the break with scores from Jack Heap, Elmer again and Jack Moffatt, all of which were converted by Jack Wade.

Ed Dunlop: Pleased with Snow Fairy's first serious piece of work

Fairy's target up in air

SNOW Fairy delighted trainer Ed Dunlop in her first serious gallop since returning from a winter break. The four-year-old had an astonishing Classic campaign last year, winning the English and Irish Oaks before plundering the Queen Elizabeth II Commemorative Cup in Japan and then the Hong Kong Cup. The Dubai Sheema Classic and the Dubai World Cup on March 26 are under consideration for the filly, but she is still by no means a certain traveller next month. "Everything went fine. It was her first gallop and we were very happy with the way she went," said Dunlop. "Fingers crossed everything continues to go okay. It was nothing too serious. "She went up the Al Bahathri gallop as she normally does. "There is no decision which race she goes for if she goes to Dubai, and she will only be going out there if we're happy with her. "If she does go, she'll go straight to the World Cup night. "We won't be making a decision whether she goes until early March and if she does go, she won't fly out until 10 or 12 days before the race."

FORDHAM start their pre-season indoor net sessions at Newmarket Leisure Centre on Thursday, February 24 from 9pm.

The sessions at the Exning Road complex will run at the same time every Thursday until April 7, with any new players welcome.

Struggling St Neots were no match for the runaway divisional leaders, who are 11 points clear.

However, a trip to Spalding III on Saturday will provide a serious test of their promotion ambitions.

The outstanding Rebecca Swift fired a hat-trick as Newmarket kept the title race alive.

Town eventually made the breakthrough against a defensive-minded side when Beth Wombwell tucked away the first goal.

Swift added the second - she also converted the fourth and the fifth goals - with Lydia Evans firing the third into the roof of the net.

Wombwell scored her second of the game to make it 6-0 and Ruth Godden completed the rout.

Tigers line up five but miss out on Evans

MILDENHALL anticipate naming five of their new seven-man team by the end of this week as the club's new promotion works feverishly behind the scenes. Michael Lee, the 52-year-old former world champion who spent the first 19 years of his life in Cambridgeshire, outlined the importance of building a winning side at home. He also conceded his disappointment at losing out on recapturing Barrie Evans and revealed that their search for a No 1 is down to just two riders. "I'll be catching up with Chris (Louis)," he said, "and we should be in a position to release five names by the end of this week. The team building is at the forefront of our minds. "You cannot leave it too long before riders get signed up, so we are keen to get it sorted out. "We are looking for a new No 1 and have two names in contention. A lot of riders are wanting silly money and we cannot get into paying that. "We are disappointed to lose out on Barrie Evans, who has gone to Hackney. He has been the mainstay of the team in the past few years and is very popular with the fans. "We tried our hardest to make him stay, but he had verbally agreed a deal with Hackney while the Mildenhall situation was uncertain and didn't want to go back on his word. "We are building a team that will be capable of winning at home and hopefully have plenty of close matches. That will give us the foundation to go on from there. It has been difficult for the team in the past few years with home losses and we want to give the fans plenty of encouragement." However, Worlington-based Lee – arguably Britain's greatest speedway racer after a 16-year racing career which earned a world title, back-to-back British championships and two World Cup gold medals with England – admitted he was revelling in his role of co-promoter. "It's interesting to now be on the other side of the fence," said Lee. "There's a lot involved and it's a completely different ball game, but one I am throwing myself into. "I had looked at the possibility of taking on Mildenhall a few weeks back but felt it was going to be too much with my engine tuning business. "Then Chris got in touch and with Kevin (Jolly) involved and all of us having a big history in East Anglian speedway, it just seemed right. "We are looking at starting training schools before the season starts with the aim of finding our No 6 and 7. It will be open to anyone looking to begin a career in speedway, whether they're 15 or 21. We want to bring it back to the old school where you earn your team place in practising."

Sands builds on Wood work for Hall

Kirkley & Pakefield 0 Mildenhall Town 1
Ridgeons League, Premier Division
JOHN Sands scored after good work from his strike partner Andrew Wood to earn Mildenhall maximum points at Kirkley & Pakefield. Goalkeeper Josh Pope had to be alert to keep the scores level, before Sands converted Wood's pin-point cross eight minutes before the break. Wood was denied in the second half and Steve Holder put a header wide of the target, while Pope tipped a drive over the bar. "Sandy gets the headlines, but he wouldn't get the goals he has if it wasn't for Woody's work," said boss Christian Appleford, who has signed Needham Market left-back Jack Wilkinson on a month's loan. Mildenhall travel to Felixstowe & Walton on Saturday before taking on CRC at home in the Cambs Invitation Cup, semi-final on Tuesday.

Gull ends up in hospital after comeback agony

Newmarket Town 2 Wivenhoe Town 1
Ridgeons League, Premier Division
JONNY Gull suffered horrific facial injuries on Saturday as he was dealt a cruel injury blow on his comeback from an ankle problem. The right-sided midfielder, who had been sidelined since scoring the winner against Mildenhall in the Suffolk Premier Cup on October 13, was accidentally caught by an opponent's boot midway through the first half. A 25-minute delay followed as an ambulance was called, with Gull later being diagnosed with a broken nose and a broken cheekbone. It was the second week running a Newmarket player had to be rushed to hospital after James Attwood suffered a dislocated shoulder, as well as ankle and knee ligament damage, following a bad fall in their 2-1 defeat at Kirkley &

Pakefield. And Jockeys' goalkeeper Rob Mackney and a Wivenhoe striker were in the wars too following a 50-50 challenge, with the former tearing an ear lobe and the latter needing stitches just above an eyebrow. "It was horrible," said Newmarket manager Kevin Grainger on the Gull incident. "It put everybody on the back foot. "The second half started slowly and neither team looked like scoring. We were totally disturbed as a team and Wivenhoe pulled one back." Newmarket, who have signed Soham forward Charles Libam on a month's loan, won the match thanks to two goals from James Lane. The away side pulled one back after striker Grant Robbins replaced the injured Mackney between the sticks. Grainger said: "The lads defended really well and the two front lads, James and Charles, were very tired at the end as they hadn't played for a while. We'd made our substitutions because of the injuries, but they worked hard." Gull is set to be out for two months and the first game he will miss is Saturday's tough Premier Division test at promotion-chasing Wroxham. Newmarket are then due to face Woodbridge at home on Tuesday.

Red-hot Ash sparks win

Newmarket 28 Norwich 26
London League, Division 3NE
PAUL Ashbridge was Newmarket's two-try hero. A catch and drive from a line-out saw play spread to Michael Reeves, who created the space for Ashbridge to run into and touch down. Reeves converted. But Norwich scored twice out wide, sandwiching a Reeves penalty, to go into a 12-10 lead. However, a carbon copy of the first try saw Ashbridge again teed up by Reeves for his second score to make it 17-12 at half time. Ashbridge had a prominent role in the third try, breaking the length of the pitch before being tackled just short of the line, and possession was recycled for Mark Cooper to touch down. Norwich responded with two converted tries, but two more penalties from Reeves clinched Newmarket's win, although they did have to rely on the visitors missing a penalty near the end. Skipper Richard Harper said: "I thought we played very well. I don't think the scoreline really reflects the game as they had four chances and took them."
